BRUCE CRAWFORD OUT

The Times Virginian reads with regret that Bruce Crawford, after 17 years of newspaper labors, has sold his famous "Crawford's Weekly" at Norton, to a competitor, Pres Atkins.

The pungent writings of Bruce gained for him almost a national hearing as an editor. His front page column: "In The Emporium" was a gem of human copy.

Not being aware of the facts of his departure for the editorial desk, we, however, we venture to wonder if Bruce didn't make a mistake in running for congress?

FLESH OR SOUL?

Our editorial hearts are made lighter by an article from a recent issue of the Christian Science Monitor. We trust that the Times Virginian is included in the type of weekly newspapers described. We quote:

"Turning from city newspapers to smaller town press exchanges that come to the editor's desk is like stepping from the slums, full of vice, into an old -fashione dgarden sweet with lavender and thyme and the scent of perennial flowers. The pages of the big dailies are so full of murder, thievery, immorality and selfishness that the better news is obscured by these glarring shatterings of the D-calogue. One puts the papers aside with a feeling of depression and hoarteache that the world is so full of terrible and unhappy things.

"Then picking up the papers that record the happenings of the little towns around us, one gains renewed faith in life. Here are set forth only that which uplifts a community: the activities of the businessmen, the church items, the happy social gatherings of the people, the marriages, births and deaths, farmer's items, and all the thousand and one daily occurances that make up the simple annals of the great common people who are really the foundation of this broad country of ours."

FOR BICAMERAL PLAN

The Times Virginian takes no stock in the so-called "Norris" plan for unicameral (one house) state legislatures. We see in it nothing but another dangerous swing toward centralized federal government.

No doubt many "Brain Trusters" would like to abolish elective state governments and let the postmaster-general appoint a state manager to "do the necessary" and let Washington direct all functions.

Representative government needs a delicate set-up of checks and balances. The bicameral system is a fundamental part of the American plan of government.

"A new standpoint"

DURING the experiences of the past few years, many of those meeting with material reverses have tried to console themselves with the popular theory that economic affairs run in cycles, and that therefore a cycle of hard times must necessarily be succeeded by a cycle of prosperity. A similar thought, expressed under another figure, represents the pendulum of experience alternating between extremes of good and ill, and argues that, because of the recent depression, its next swing must inevitably take the world back to a former period of material plenitude. Gradually, however, it is becoming apparent that such a swing is not likely to occur; that conditions may never be just as they were in former years. Abundance is as much a fact today as it ever was, and a normal general sense of well-being must be—is being—restored; but ground swept away by the recent financial cataclysm cannot be reoccupied.

In this connection, great significance attaches to a passage which occurs on page 556 of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy. She says, "Mortal mind must waken to spiritual life before it cares to solve the problem of being," and adds, "but when that awakening comes, existence will be on a new standpoint."

Is not this awakening even now manifest? In almost every nation there is more or less evidence of the unrest that accompanies awakening. Human beings are beginning to shake off the lethargic dream of satisfaction in materiality. A "divine discontent" is stirring in the breasts of some of the world's leaders. An indication of this is that never before were so many thinkers of all shades of opinion engaged in efforts to solve human problems. There seems to be general recognition of the fact that mankind needs to take a new standpoint. A more spiritual sense of being already shows itself in a fuller perception of the brotherhood of man, in the demand for equal rights among all men, and in a clearer understanding that the well-being of one class cannot be secured at the expense of any other class. There would seem to be no longer a "forgotten man"; the humblest now may voice a claim to consideration. Many long-sought objectives, such as shorter hours of work and better pay, improved living conditions, protection for child workers, and so forth, have drawn nearer realization than ever before. Slowly, but as yet imperfectly, wrongs are being righted; justice is being inculcated; compassion is finding expression. Spiritual thinking prevails over material thinking every time, the smallest victory is secured for the right.

A beautiful hymn written by Mrs. Eddy includes the following lines (Hymns, p. 14):

"Thou wilt bind the stubborn will,
Wound the callous breast,
Make self-righteousness be still,
Break earth's stupid rest."

The simple adjective employed in the last line epitomizes with remarkable clearness the testimony of some who have enjoyed to the full the material luxury the world offers and freely admit that after all it is but a "stupid rest." The breaking of earthly dependencies, however, may sometimes seem to be a painful process, and the average human being, while aspiring to peace on earth, clings contentedly to the things of earth. Only those of deeper religious insight can perceive that only by the relinquishment of a false sense of ease in matter can genuine spiritual peace be attained.

We read in Exodus that "the children of Israel murmured against Moses and Aaron," saying, "Ye have brought us forth into this wilderness, to kill this whole assembly with hunger." From this we may deduce that they had visioned physical ease and material plenty after escaping from Egypt, whereas they encountered dangers and hardships. This period of discipline, however, supplied them with overwhelming proofs of the omnipotence of Spirit, so that later they declared, "All that the Lord hath said will we do, and be obedient."

Centuries afterward, when their nation was under the Roman yoke, some of the Jews believed that Jesus' mission was to reestablish the Hebrew nation in all its former prestige and glory. But such was not the case. Jesus' sublime life-work and supreme sacrifice were not for the purpose of building or rebuilding a structure of material satisfaction. By example and precept he taught the laws of God, through the understanding of which he dominated matter instead of being dominated by it.

It is not to be inferred that riches are evil in themselves, or that poverty is an advantage, but in experiences, however sharp, which turn one to God and away from subservience to any form of materiality, let none shrink from the effort to prove complete reliance on God. To those who pass through such tests clinging to the truth, the promise remains, "Behold, I send an Angel before thee, to keep thee in the way, and to bring thee into the place which I have prepared."—The Christian Science Monitor.

Pounds of firm healthy flesh fast—as if by magic—are being added to the bodies of thousands of people instead of tired listlessness, nerves of quiet nerves! That is what thousands of people are getting through scientific latest discovery—the Vitamins of Cod Liver Oil concentrated into little sugar coated tablets without any of the horrid, fishy taste or smell. A girl of 13 seven after the first bottle had gained 5 lbs. A man of 40 writes: "I like each week after I started. A nursing mother who could not eat or sleep after baby came got all her health back and gained 10 lbs. in one than a month.

You, yourself must try McCoy's at once. Remember if you don't gain at least 5 lbs. of firm, healthy flesh in a few weeks' time, return the bottle to your druggist and get your money back. Demand and see that you get McCoy's—the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Tablets with the Vitamins. Good Housekeeping Institute. Buy none all substitutes—there are none as good as the better

Farmer's Column

Farmers in Virginia and other Southwestern states who have been accustomed to buying seed oats for spring planting are finding it difficult to do so this year because of the shortage in feed and seed created by the drought.

The variety Fulghum is recommended for this area, and farmers are advised to buy this variety in preference to others. As a substitute, however, the department of agriculture suggests Red Rustproof, which matures later than Fulghum. It pushed to it, farmers may also use one of the white or yellow varieties, such as Kherson, Sixty day or Richland, although these will be less satisfactory.

Whatever the variety, good farmers know that it is best to use only good seed, free from disease and as low as possible in weed seed content— in other words, certified seed.

Foreign trade in hog products, especially lard, continues at a low level; and this is given as one of the principal reasons for the continuation of the corn—hog program into 1935. Shipments of pork from this country showed a slight upward trend last year, but lard exports declined.

Producers who sign the 1935 corn—hog adjustment contract will be permitted to make unlimited purchases of feeder and stocker and breeding pigs from non signers as well as from contract signers, according to a new ruling effective beginning December 1, 1934.

The Moral Being

A man in a neighboring state, on returning from a hunting trip, the other day, found his neighbor just leaving the house, and being of a jealous nature, drew his gun and filled the man's legs with fine shot. A lawsuit followed, and it was learned that the neighbor had been there to borrow the county paper. The lawsuit cost $75, and the doctor's bill was $25. $1.50, the price of the county paper for a year would have saved all the trouble.

How your MONEY WORKS FOR YOU IN A Checking Account

When you put your money in a savings account you get interest on it. In a checking account you get service for it—and let the bank draw the interest. In return for this interest the bank gives you privileges worth far more to you than the interest itself.

When you maintain a balance commensurate with your use of your checking account privileges, the bank will be reimbursed for the expense of serving you. Otherwise, the bank may properly look to you to meet this expense.

Local Church Observes Paster's Tenth Annivesary In Community

Pastor and Wife Honored Here on Tenth Anniversary In Appomattox

Last Sunday marked the tenth anniversary of the pastorate of Rev. W. M. Thompson at Liberty Baptist church and the event was fittingly observed in the Sunday School Sunday morning.

Rev. Thompson came here ten years ago from the Old South church in Newark, N. J., succeeding Rev. H. P. East.

A remembrance in the form of a cash present was given the pastor and his wife, being presented by Mrs. T. M. Trent. Rev. and Mrs. Thompson made appropriate replies.

Liberty church has made steady forward progress during the present pastorate and is considered one of Virginia's strongest Baptist churches.

Rev. Thompson was selected to preach the annual sermon at the state Baptist association in Bristol on Tuesday of this week, using as his theme: "This Shaking World."

Back in the "hand set" days of newspapers, when two or three lines were needed to fill up a column, this jingle was popular:

"Up jumped the devil
In a dickens of a haste,
And set four lines
To fill this space."
But, it was worth 9 lines today.

Lady Says She Took CARDUI for Cramps; Was Soon Relieved

Women who suffer as she did will be interested in the experience of Mrs. Maude Crafton, of Bellevville, Ill., who writes: "For several years, I suffered from irregular trouble and cramping. There would be days when I would have to stay in bed. I would get so nervous, I was miserable. My aunt told me to try Cardui. She believed it would build me up, regulate me and help the nervous trouble. I knew after taking half a bottle of Cardui that I was better. I kept on taking Cardui and found it was doing me a world of good. I am in good health, which means a lot to me." . . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician. . . . Price $1.

AGENT'S SERVICE: Its value is often overlooked by the policyholder because it has been rendered in too unobstrusive fashion

We see the work of many agent's and many of them give their assured, service that is literally beyond price.

The'e are a few who do not give value received.

The competent agent who has rendered a full measure of service—and has impressed that upon his assured—has little to fear from competitors who sell their wares on price, who dangle a prospective 'savin' of a few premium dollars before their prospect's eyes and carefully say nothing of the liabilities he will assume to get that "saving."
